"ON LCOKOUT."

ED. SOUTH KENTICKIAN: Leaving Chattanooga with a party of friends on the morning of the 27th at 7:30 o'clock we took what Is known as the old road to Lockout. Not a great distance from the base of her lecture was in poetry, commencthe meantain, where the driver stopped to water his horses, wo were No subscriptions taken on time and all papers | shown the spot where once stood the blacksmith shep of old Aaron Hunt made famous by the gifted Alabama Anthoress, Augusta Evans, (now Mrs. Wilson); on the mountain side a little higher up on the right stood a building, a residence bearing the name of St. Elmo, a gentleman of the party told us that an effort had been made to name the little village of Kirkland, through which we had just passed, St. Elmo but as yet It had been unsuccessful. Our horses having satiated their thirst we again which up the rugged route before us; leavngChattanooga in the distance below us we draw nearer heaven each step. We find at the top of the road Lookout mountain house, half here for a short while and are told that we should have witnessed a sunrise from this point, the blulsh gray mists arlsing from the vailey below, presenting the appearance of sun tinted wayes are particularly beautiful. Summer Town is mentloned as a former resort of beauty, wealth and fashlen, we reach a sandy road, and soon one driver again halts at the gate of the Park, the gate keeper, a woman, demands the enfrance fee, 25 cents e..ch. and we pass in, but feel that this se called Park needs the magic wand of improvement, which could add greatly to its attractions. Col. E. W. Cole Instead of Col. Ball, as stated in the last communication from your correscondent, will doubtless leave nothing undone to add to this point of interest. At the usual halting ground we leave our carriage and on foot wind our way over a rugged and wild path and bearing to the left can reach the Art Gallery, and from the observatory, a most exquisite landscape is presented to any view, and one that ourists declare cannot be teaten upon the American continent. Here we are 1700 feet above Chartanooga whileh is clearly defined before us in the distance. At the base of the point enryes the Tennessee. The river has washed the land into the form of an Indian Moccasin, toe and heel and ankle being well defined. We pay ten cents apiece for the use of the telescope, look into Chattanooga, read clearly the time of day, watch the turn from this to the entrance of the National cemetery and like a Kaleidoscope, change again through the clained glass windows of the observatory; in the language of the psalmist "we stood and measured the earth" and the masses of toliage dim and purplish in the distance, viewed through erlmson and blue and purple lights make a googeens scene and the variegated toliage indescribably beautiful. An enthused young lady of the party having extransted all the adjectives in her admiration of the panerama before her finally declared the hills on either side the plain in front and different lines prescuted were just like "the ludescribable patchwork of a crazy quilt." As It was Sunday we declined having our party photographed. It was at this famens point that "the battle above the month. The Political Turmoil.

The two great parties have held their national conventions constructed their platforms, and put their candidates for President in the field. The contest will new go on with varying fortunes until election day, the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November (4th). The intertry is in every respect wholesome. Some bad blood may be generated by political discussions are an education to the mass of the communily. They teach our people lessons of self-government and self-restraint. Whenever Americans care for other matters more than the conflicts of parties-when they refuse to votethen will come the downfield of the Republic. There is a current illusion that the political agitation of Presidential years is laurtful to business, but it seems this is not true. Trade statisties show that, on the whole, our great national contests stimulate transactions in trade. It is, however quite true that the theaters and places of amusement in large cities are not so well patrenized while the canvass is being actively prosecuted. -From Demorest's Monthly fer Sep-
